

TERMS & CONDITIONS:

1. This competition is run by New Scientist Ltd and by entering this competition you are contracting with New Scientist Ltd and no other third party.
2. This competition is open to anyone, except for employees of New Scientist Ltd, the European Space Agency, BT, any other company involved in the sponsorship of the competition, or anyone involved in the running or sponsorship of New Scientist Live.
3. Every entrant will be entered into a draw to win the opportunity to ask a question live to ESA astronaut Paolo Nespoli on the International Space Station on the afternoon of Friday 29th September 2017 at New Scientist Live. The winner will also receive a pair of VIP tickets to New Scientist Live for Friday 29th September.
4. Submit the question you would like to ask, including your name, email address, postal address, phone number and age using the entry form found on the Ticketmaster UK blog.
5. Entries must be received by Thursday 21 September 2017 at 23:59 BST. Entries made after this time will not be counted.
6. Multiple entries per person are permitted. No purchase is necessary.
7. The winner will be the entry deemed the best and most interesting question, as decided by a New Scientist editor. The judging will take place at 25 Bedford Street, London, WC2E 9ES, UK. The European Space Agency will approve the winning question in advance.
8. Every effort will be made to notify the winner by email on 22 September 2017. If for any reason a winner does not respond to the email requesting acknowledgement within 24 hours, New Scientist may draw an alternative winner.
9. Due to the technical challenges of establishing a satellite connection with the International Space Station, New Scientist Ltd will not be liable for any failure to comply with its obligations relating to this competition due to force majeure or any other factor outside its control.
10. Any entrant under the age of 18 should ensure they have parental or guardian consent before entering. If the winner is under the age of 18, they will be required to pass on to New Scientist contact details for their parents or guardian, who will be contacted before the prize can be issued.
11. If the winner is already a Friday ticket holder the winner's ticket will be refunded by New Scientist Ltd or New Scientist Ltd will provide additional tickets, subject to the winner's preference.

12. Submitting your entry constitutes your consent for New Scientist Ltd to use your entry, name and photos (if applicable) for editorial or publicity purposes. If the winner is aged under 18, parental consent will be sought before usage of their name or any photo of them.
13. New Scientist Ltd reserves the right to ask for proof of age and evidence to verify the identity of an entrant at any time, and may use any channels and methods available to carry out checks of any details provided. Entrants may only enter the competition in their own name. Entries submitted through agents or third parties other than a parent, will not be accepted.
14. You hereby warrant that your entry will not infringe the intellectual property, privacy or any other rights of any third party, and will not contain anything which is libellous, defamatory, obscene, indecent, harassing or threatening.
15. Winners' names are available by writing to "New Scientist ISS question competition", New Scientist Live, 110 High Holborn, London, WC1V 6EU, UK.
16. New Scientist reserves the right to change or withdraw the competition and/or prize at any time.
17. Please note that this competition is not run, sponsored or endorsed by, or associated with, Ticketmaster UK Limited or any Ticketmaster related entities (together "Ticketmaster"). Ticketmaster is therefore not responsible to participants in respect of any aspect of this competition and accepts no liability in this regard.
18. By entering the competition, entrants are deemed to have accepted these terms and conditions.
19. New Scientist Ltd, 110 High Holborn, London, WC1V 6EU.